Views of County's First Army Camp

Camera views at the camp of the Second Battalion of the 333rd Engineers Regiment east of Marion are shown above. The top view shows one of the company streets, rows of tents holding from six to eight men each. Second from the top, under the man working on a pole, is a company orderly tent and at the left one of its supply tents. The company's "top" sergeant lives in the orderly tent, makes it the company's administrative headquarters: the "top kick" or first sergeant is the company's highest non-commissioned officer and serves as contact man between his men and the commissioned officers. Third from the top is an interior view of one of the tents with two corporals sitting on a bunk studying one of the many army field manuals. At the right are some coats hanging from an improvised rack built around the tent pole. Soldiers carry all their belongings in a pack and in two bags like those shown on the bunks. Fourth from the top is a typical company field kitchen. Old timers will recognize these army stoves, including the bake oven at the lower left, fired with wood. At the bottom soldiers gather around for the daily mail call with a husky-lunged corporal calling out the names of men to whom letters are addressed.

Soldiers Convert Farm Field Into Full-Fledged Training Camp.

By BOB BYRD

Marion county's first soldier camp in modern times is giving residents of this vicinity their first glimpse of army field life. The scores of automobiles that drive slowly past the camp at the east edge of the Marion Quartermaster War Aid Depot prove that Marion area residents are interested — and the soldiers add that they likewise have been unusually interested in seeing that the men enjoy themselves in their hours off duty.

Casual visitors aren't allowed at the camp, but persons calling on business are admitted regularly by armed guards who patrol the entire border of the camp 24 hours a day.

How a battalion of between 400 and 500 men can convert a field of wheat stubble into an orderly camp layout in short order is a source of never-ending wonder to civilians who never had a taste of army life. The Marion camp is well along—they're developing cinder roads, the mess tents are nearly completed and the men are thoroughly settled down to business although they've been here only a few days.

Essential Services

Water, food, communications, sanitary facilities, laundry—these are just some of the things that have to be provided when soldiers open a new camp.

At the front of the camp, which faces east, are three tents. The middle one is battalion headquarters which now has the luxury of a telephone, a board floor and enough equipment to permit it to function nicely as an office. To the south of this is the tent of the commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Herman Work. To the north of the headquarters is the tent of Capt. Earle P. Grey the battalion adjutant.

Back of these three tents in a neat row are the tents of the other commissioned officers. Still back of these are the tents of the three companies that make up the battalion. Other tents are placed in orderly fashion at various points around the camp. One group consists of the Medical Detachment including two doctors and a dentist as well as enlisted men trained in caring for the sick and wounded. Other units include a detachment of the headquarters and service company, the supply headquarters and the motor pool.

Get Special Training

This is an unusual battalion and its present work, which is intended primarily to train the men to handle a wide range of

The George W. Timmons company of Columbus received the contract, to total between $100,000 and $500,000. Due to military secrecy surrounding all such construction projects, no information was released as to what the project is.

NEWARK, O., Sept. 9—Salvage workers cleaning up the wreckage of a two-motored bomber that smashed into a downtown apartment house found today the remains of what they believed to be the ninth victim.

Eight bodies — six occupants of the plane and two women civilians — already had been recovered from the debris of yesterday's mid-day crash. Neither army nor local authorities were able to establish at once identity of the last body found.

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, O., Sept. 9 — The mid-day crash of a twin-motored army bomber into an apartment building killed eight persons—six occupants of the plane and two women civilians, authorities reported today.

City firemen, directed by army officers investigating the accident, early today found the body of Mrs. A. L. Weston, 62-year-old widow, deep under debris of the two-story structure which she owned. Mrs. Dollie Campbell, returning from a shopping trip, was killed while walking by the building.

Salvage workers also removed from the wreckage the bodies of two of the plane's occupants, Lieut. Russell E. Newlin, 30, of Indianapolis, and O. A. Pecon of Dayton, O., civilian crew chief at Wright Field.

The bomber hedge-hopped over Newark's business district yesterday noon, sheared off tree-tops, scraped the roof of the Licking county jail, damaged a residence and struck the Weston building, which was demolished as a gasoline tank ripped loose from the plane and exploded.

Other Buildings Damaged

Flaming gasoline and wreckage also ignited the nearby home of E. J. Edmonds and a former church building occupied by the offices of Dr. Roland Jones.

Seconds earlier, two men leaped from the low-flying bomber and plummeted to earth when their parachutes failed to open. One fell through the roof of the home of Dr. Louis Mitchell. The other, Lieut. Lawrence S. Lawver, 29, of Freeport, Ill., the plane's co-pilot, plunged to a loading platform at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad depot.

At Wright Field, where the ship took off in the morning, its occupants were identified as Col. Douglas M. Kilpatrick, 33, of Houma, La., pilot, Privates Charles Watson and Corp R. A. Arens, 21, both of Dayton, Lieut. Lawver, Lieut. Newlin and Pecon.

Two employes of the apartment building were injured, neither critically. They were Mrs. Walter Welsh, who suffered a jaw fracture, and her daughter, Mrs. Paul Winsch, who received back injuries, cuts and bruises.

Wreckage was scattered over a wide area by the impact of the plane striking the apartment and the subsequent crash. A tip of one wing was picked up two blocks from the scene.

Boy Has Close Call

Jerry Neighbor, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Neighbor, had as close a brush with death as any who escaped.

He was walking to his home from school and heard a terrific roar just after passing the apartment. He related he thought at

Two Men Hurt as Small Army Plane Falls Here

Lieutenant and Sergeant in Hospital After Accident in Take-Off at Marion Airport This Afternoon.

Two U. S. army men, one a pilot, were injured and their plane was demolished in a crash about 2:10 p. m. today at the Marion airport.

In City hospital are Lt. J. C. Townsend and Staff Sergeant Roberts. Both were still in surgery at 3 p. m.

The pilot Lieutenant Townsend, was believed to be in fairly good condition and it was reported that Sergeant Roberts suffered a bad head concussion.

The plane crashed in a shallow ditch south of the airport road and one of the men was under water for some time. Oxygen and artificial respiration were used while hurrying him to the hospital and at 3 he was still unconscious. Conditions of the two men were reported to be serious.

The plane was one of seven taking off from the airport after refueling here on a ferry flight from an eastern port.

Planes Had Refueled

The planes had refueled about an hour before and were taking off, one at a time.

The plane which crashed, a Piper Cub, was caught in a down draft of current and one wing struck the west edge of the hangar. The plane tore into a high tension wire and then struck a tree before crashing into the ditch.

Pilots of the other planes saw the crash and landed immediately to join in rescue work.

Gas and oil from the plane coated the shallow water and covered the clothing of men who went to the rescue. Besides the other pilots on the flight, the rescue work was carried on by employes at the airport and persons who gathered quickly after the accident was reported.

The one man was unconscious when removed from the plane and firemen called to the scene used oxygen and gave artificial respiration in the Merle H. Hughes ambulance which rushed the men to the hospital.

Plane Total Loss

The plane was a total loss.

The flight was part of an observation squadron and the planes all were small Piper cubs of a type used to direct artillery fire—seeing how close shells come to targets.

The other planes remained at the airport until it could be determined the extent of the injuries of the two men and then were to proceed to their destination.

The state highway patrol, sheriff's office, city police and city firemen all were called to the airport and arrived within a few minutes after the first report of the crash was made.

First To Reach Plane

Don Sansotta, who was standing beside the hangar saw the accident, was among the first to reach the plane.

It had toppled on its side, with the door side down and one man was trapped inside.

One man, reported to be Sergeant Roberts, was in the water and A. A. Freeman, manager of the airport, held his head above water after Mr. Freeman and Mr. Sansotta and others at the scene succeeded in lifting the plane off its side. It was necessary to virtually tear the plane apart to rescue the second man.

Billy Rinesmith, 17, of 762 Davids street, employed at the airport, put in the call for the ambulance and brought tools from the hangar to use in breaking up the wreckage to release the one man.

Officials of the Scioto Ordnance Plant and the Engineer Battalion at the Quartermaster Depot, summoned by police radio, arrived within a short time to offer their assistance.

Air Raid Wardens To Aid Scrap Drive During "Alert"

Marion's 600 air raid wardens will do double duty some night this week.

They or their 600 assistants, or both, will respond to a telephone mobilization test to be held on an unannounced night some time this week.

In addition to patrolling their areas in connection with the air raid alert, they will make a house-to-house canvass to ask Marion residents to put all of their available scrap metal between the sidewalk and curb in front of their houses early Friday morning.

Earl Runkman, chief air raid warden, said his group had decided to give full support to the citywide scrap metal drive Friday by contacting every home in the city on mobilization night.

Marion homes are to be contacted about the drive again Friday when Boy Scouts ring doorbells as they accompany trucks on a tour of the city to pick up the scrap metal. If there is no metal in front of a house, the Scouts will knock at the door to make doubly sure that every Marion family has a chance to contribute. The drive is under the direction of the Marion County Salvage committee of which George Alber and Clyde C. Caldwell are co-chairmen.

Soldiers To Be Dinner Guests in Homes of Marion

A drive to provide Sunday dinners in Marion homes for all of the soldiers with the 333rd Engineers battalion east of here who will be free for dinner invitations next Sunday was begun today by the Marion Amateur Day association.

The association has asked Marion families willing to invite one or more of the soldiers for dinner next Sunday to telephone any one of three members of the association to make arrangements. The three are Marion Hinklin, president, who may be reached during office hours at telephone 2430, J. D. Torrance, who may be contacted at 6280 and J. R. Roby, who may be reached at 5256. Persons who are able to provide transportation for the soldiers will be asked to make arrangements to pick up the men at the camp and take them to their homes. The soldiers will provide their own transportation back to camp.

Mr. Hinklin explained the association realizes many Marion families have already invited soldiers to dinner, but that the drive is being staged to make sure every soldier who will be free for an invitation and wants one will have one waiting on him next Sunday. He said the association will make arrangements only for this coming Sunday, but added that some other organization might sponsor the dinner project on later Sundays.

Soldiers in position to accept Sunday invitations will be able to leave the camp at 11:30 a. m. Sunday, he said after conferring with Lieut. Grant, the camp service officer.

MARION AREA RENT OFFICE OPERATING

The Marion federal rent office at 304 West Center street opened yesterday under the direction of John K. Bartram, attorney recently named federal rent director for the Marion area.

The office will be open week days from 8:45 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., with a 45-minute lunch hour at noon, the director said.

Both landlords and tenants made inquiries on the opening day.

Within a short time OPA regulations affecting the Marion area since it was brought under federal rent control Sept. 1 will be announced, according to the director.

Tickets Going Fast For Tuesday War Bond Dinner

Tickets are selling fast for Marion's big war bond dinner next Tuesday night at which three Hollywood stars will be guests, George Planck, chairman, announced today.

Friday of this week will be the deadline for accepting mail orders.

A blank which may be used in making reservations for the $76.50-a-plate dinner appears in tonight's edition of The Star, affording everyone in Marion and nearby communities an opportunity to join in the public party. Many mail orders already have been received at Box No. "Bonds" in care of The Star.

Ilona Massey, glamorous Hollywood import from Hungary, Fred Astaire, who is the film city's No. 1 dancer, and Hugh Herbert, whom many consider Hollywood's most entertaining comedian, will come to Marion from Mansfield for the war bond drive.

While arrangements for the dinner are going on apace, including a brief program in which the stars will have the leading part, Mr. Planck today began working out details of a huge war bond rally which will be

LINES STAND OFF SMASHING NAZI DRIVES

Hitler Throws Huge Force of Men and Weapons Against Russians.

By The Associated Press

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, frenziedly driving his armies to capture Stalingrad, threw fresh masses of men and armor into the bloody assault today, but the Russians declared they were holding firmly on all sides of the imperilled Volga metropolis.

German field headquarters asserted in broad terms that tank-led Nazi troops had stormed and captured "dominating heights" in the fortified zone west of Stalingrad after stubborn fighting.

On Stalingrad's southern flank, the Russians said Red army mortar batteries and riflemen killed 350 axis troops in beating off four successive assaults supported by massed planes.

Soviet accounts said axis planes were so thick they were "literally hanging over our front line and bombing our positions," but the Russians waited them out and then charged to drive off the axis ground forces.

Front-line dispatches said Nazi tanks and infantry, attacking under an umbrella of dive bombers, deepened a narrow wedge in the city's western defenses yesterday.

"After a violent engagement, our troops retreated to a new defense line," Soviet headquarters said.

Then, amid bitter all-night fighting, the Red armies stiffened and at mid-day today the Soviet command indicated there had been no further withdrawals.

Nevertheless, the situation was described as "particularly complicated" immediately west of Stalingrad as the Germans moved up large reinforcements and attacked continuously.

On Central Front

Striking out on the central front, Soviet troops were reported to have dislodged the enemy from a fortified district west of Moscow, killed 400 Germans and captured prisoners.

Without editorial comment, Soviet newspapers prominently displayed Prime Minister Churchill's war review in which Churchill promised that Britain and the United States would come to Russia's aid "as quickly as possible without regard to losses or sacrifices."

Nor was there any official comment on Churchill's statement that strongly reinforced British armies in Iran (Persia) and Iraq might eventually support the Russian left flank in the Caucasus, now gravely threatened by Nazi columns driving far down the land bridge to the Middle East.

Soviet dispatches said the struggle in the central Caucasus, 350 miles down the Baku railway from Rostov, apparently was stabilizing in the Mozdok region 50 miles northwest of the Grozny oil fields, and declared Soviet troops had slaughtered 850 German officers and men in a battle along the Terek river yesterday.

"The enemy, unable to withstand the attack, attempted to withdraw from the action," the Russian command said.

"Our troops inflicted a flanking blow and are continuing the fight, aiming to annihilate the group."

Western Air War

In the western air war, waves of RAF bombers — perhaps 250 strong—attacked the Rhineland port city of Frankfurt in their sixth night raid on Germany this month.

Great fires were left raging in the city, the British air ministry reported. Seven RAF bombers were acknowledged missing.

Other RAF planes attacked targets elsewhere in the Rhineland, and DNB, the official German news agency, said "material damage was caused in residential districts of some towns."

On the Egyptian battlefront, British headquarters reported a continued lull in ground fighting while RAF planes attacked Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's long-drawn supply lines on the Salum-Matruh road, destroying trucks, fuel tank cars and staff cars.

Three German planes were re-

Pre-Election Poll Shows Indication of Substantial Republican Gain in House

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 9—This year's congressional race shows every evidence of becoming a real battle, and Republican prospects sharply improved.

Latest soundings of public opinion over the past 10 days by the Institute indicate that if the fall elections were held at this time, the Republicans would gain 21 seats in the house of representatives as compared to 1940.

The improved pro pects give the Republicans at least a chance to win control of the house, as they did in the wartime period of 1918.

While the present estimated gain is still considerably short of the 52-seat increase that would be necessary to win control, nevertheless Republican prospects today are in sharp contrast to the situation during the summer, when Institute surveys found the Democrats holding their own or better. Today the opposing sides look much more evenly matched.

If election were held at the present time, the indications are that the composition of the House would be as follows:

|---|---|
| Estimated Democratic Seats | 247 |
| Estimated Republican Seats | 183 |
| Other Parties | 5 |
| | 435 |

It takes 218 seats to control the House. In the 1940 election the Republicans had 162. This number has been increased to 166 at present through victories in special by-elections.

F. D. R. Popularity Down

The improved Republican prospects coincide with a sharp drop found by the Institute in President Roosevelt's personal popularity, which fell from 76 per cent six weeks ago to 70 per cent last week.

That drop, together with Republican gains indicated in today's survey, undoubtedly reflects a feeling of dissatisfaction among many voters with the manner in which the war effort is being administered.

The public has, in many Institute surveys, indicated a desire for a more re olute program and one which sets aside all consideration of politics as usual or business as usual.

Turnout Helps G. O. P.

One other major factor helping the Republicans is the surprising lack of interest in this year's Congressional campaign among pro- [illegible] as compared to Roosevelt in 1940.

Nothing in any primary election to date has shown an unusually low turnout. This factor appears to be the advantage of the Republicans, as party generally have the role to go to the polls and vote.

If the Democrats are unable to work up more interest among the rank and file of regular Roosevelt voters they face a serious problem.

Sectional Changes

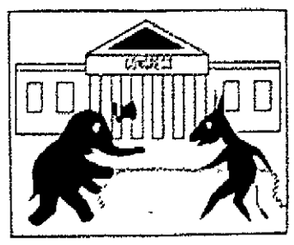
The main Republican gains in today's survey come in the Middle Atlantic and East Central areas.



As the following table of comparison for the major parties shows:

| | Est. Dem. Seats | Est. Rep. Seats | Dem. Gain or Loss |
|---|---|---|---|
| New Eng. | 9 | 19 | — 5 |
| M. Atlantic | 51 | 53 | —10 |
| E. Central | 25 | 52 | — 6 |
| W. Central | 10 | 10 | — 6 |
| South | 118 | 5 | — 2 |
| Mountain | 13 | 3 | — 2 |
| Pac. Coast | 21 | 12 | — 3 |

No one can foretell, of course, what effect the military fortunes of the war will have on political sentiment between now and the election.

A review of history shows that presumably would be the advantage of the Democratic side, for the party in power usually gains in off-year elections.

Marion Service To Mark Start of Jewish New Year

The Marion Congregation of Israel and the members of the Jewish faith throughout the world will observe Rosh Hashonah as the beginning of the Jewish year 5704.

The New year's [illegible] will be observed [illegible] at 8 p. m. [illegible] and on the W. T. Grant Co. store on West Center street will inaugurate a Monday program period culminating in Day of Atonement services Sept. 20-21.

Allan Tarshish of Columbus will conduct the New Year services, with Mrs. Victor E. Dempsey directing the choir. Visitors will be welcome.

The New Year begins at sundown Friday and continues until sundown Saturday.

Rabbi Samuel M. Gup of Temple Israel in Columbus, said recently of the Jewish New Year:

"This year the holy days seem more relevant to our needs and more expressive of our mood than in the more complacent past. For, as our tradition teaches us, the New Year is a time of judgment for mankind, and the Day of Atonement urges the human heart both to repentance and resolution. The human race is today experiencing the time for judgment seldom if ever equaled in history and the earth is being summoned, in the crucible of its pain, both to repent for the social sins of the past and to resolve to build a wiser human abode in the future.

"Confident that the laws of God will not permit the ultimate victory of evil, if men will but play their creative part, we face this year of judgment with undiminished hope."

MARION INDUSTRIAL SALVAGE REPORTED

Month's Scrap Materials Total 359,314 Pounds.

The Marion industrial salvage committee accounted for 359,314 pounds of scrap materials in July, according to a report today by Regional Chief J. C. Deibel of the industrial salvage section of the war production board.

The report, issued from the Cleveland office, lists the Marion materials as 320,616 pounds of iron and steel, 33,990 pounds of non-ferrous metals, 210 pounds of rubber and 4,498 pounds of other materials, including rags.

C. O. Brown is chairman of the Marion committee.

Eight Ohio cities are participating in the WPB industrial salvage program.

Mr. Deibel in his report said the national outlook on scrap supplies was very clear and if blast furnace tonnages were to be sustained, industrial salvage committees in the nation must redouble their efforts." He pointed out that mills had only a week supply on hand despite the unprecedented production activity in the mills.

Loses Driving Rights for Life in Marion Court

A Coshocton county man lost his driving rights for life when brought before Municipal Judge W. Dexter Hazen yesterday on a charge of reckless driving.

The driver, who entered a guilty plea, is the one who led a Marion highway patrolman over a wild 45-mile chase on the night of Aug. 12, starting north of Marion and ending in a traffic jam at Broad and High streets in Columbus.

The 45-mile chase was made in 46 minutes and the driver, patrolmen reported, went through highway repair zone obstructions, passed vehicles on either the right or left side and in Columbus passed street cars on the left side.

He had been taken to Coshocton county immediately after the arrest for possible mental examination, but nothing developed there and he was brought here yesterday to face the reckless driving charge.

HUGE U.S. TRANSPORT WAKEFIELD DAMAGED

Former Liner Manhattan Burns, 1,600 Saved.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—The naval transport Wakefield, formerly the liner Manhattan, was severely damaged by a fire at sea September 5, the navy announced today, but more than 1,600 passengers and crew members were removed without loss of life.

The charred hulk of the 24,000-ton ship, one time queen of the United States merchant fleet, has now been salvaged and towed to an Atlantic coast port, a navy statement said.

Adding that "preliminary reports indicate that all the passengers and crew were safe. The navy said several were injured.

The fire was described as being of undetermined origin."

It broke out on one deck level and spread swiftly throughout the ten-year-old, $10,000,000 ship.

It soon became necessary to remove the more than one thousand passengers, many of whom were civilians, the others presumably being men in the naval service, the navy related.

In addition to the one thousand there were, according to the vessel's normal complement, six hundred to seven hundred officers and crewmen aboard, commanded by Commander Harold Gardiner Bradbury, of Port Angeles, Washington, a coast guard officer.

The navy said the rescue was brought about in a thrilling manner by warships protecting the convoy in which the Wakefield was traveling to an east coast port.

A cruiser maneuvered its bow alongside the stern of the transport and a destroyer placed itself along the side. At these close quarters the passengers were transferred quickly from the blazing ex-liner.

The crew remained aboard the ship fighting to bring the fire under control, the navy announcement continued, but their efforts were unsuccessful and it soon became necessary for them also to transfer to the cruiser.

Aboard that ship they waited until the intensity of the fire had decreased somewhat and Commander Bradbury then led a special fire fighting party back aboard the transport and succeeded in bringing the flames under control.

Meanwhile tugs and salvage craft had been summoned and when they arrived successfully began towing operations. They finally delivered the former Manhattan to port.

The vessel was built in 1932 for the United States Lines by the New York Shipbuilding Co. at Camden, N. J.

The navy said that at the time of her completion she was the largest transAtlantic liner built in the United States.

Home-baked cheer for your soldier won't even strain the family sugar ration if you make good use of sugar substitutes such as honey, syrup and vitamin-packed fruits.

Maple Nut Fingers are good travelers, provided they are packed firmly in a box and with plenty of waxed paper between the layers. Cream ½ cup fat with ½ cup sugar, add 2 eggs, beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1/3 teaspoon salt. Beat well and add ½ cup maple syrup, 1½ cups cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Beat 2 minutes and pour to about the thickness of an inch in shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Sprinkle top of batter with 2/3 cup nuts (shaved Brazils, pecans or walnuts). Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven—about 350 degrees F. Cool and cut in bars.

Lollypops will make a big hit with the boys and they will keep moist and not crumble easily. Cream 2/3 cup fat with 1 cup sugar (dark brown preferred), add 1/3 cup molasses, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon and ½ teaspoon each cloves, nutmeg and salt. Stir in 3 beaten eggs, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1 cup chopped prunes and 2/3 cup broken nuts. Add ¼ cup orange juice, 4 cups flour and 1 teaspoon each of soda and baking powder. Shape dough into a roll, wrap in waxed paper and chill 24 hours or longer. Cut off thin slices and bake 10 minutes in moderate oven on greased cooky sheets.

Old fashioned and with plenty of appeal are these Grandma Oatmeal Cookies: Cream 1 cup fat with 2/3 cup sugar until soft. Add ½ cup honey and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat thoroughly. Stir in 2 eggs, beaten, 1/3 cup sour cream, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ½ teaspoon mace. Add 1½ cups uncooked oatmeal, toasted a light brown by heating 5 minutes or so in shallow pan in moderate oven. Mix 1 cup chopped raisins, 1 cup chopped dried apricots, ½ cup each chopped candied cherries and pineapple, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and ¼ cup chopped citron (optional). Add these fruits with 4 cups flour, 1½ teaspoons soda and 1 teaspoon baking powder to the rest of the ingredients. Chill dough and then drop portions from a spoon onto greased baking sheets. Flatten each cooky with a fork dipped in flour. Top the cookies with raisins, nut halves or squares of candied fruits and bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

One pound of waste cooking fats will produce enough glycerine to manufacture one-half pound of dynamite.

One pound of waste cooking fats will produce enough glycerine to manufacture one-twentieth pound nitro-glycerine.

One pound of waste cooking fats will produce enough glycerine to manufacture one and 3/10 pounds smokeless powder used in heavy artillery ammunition.

Fifty pounds of waste cooking fats used in the manufacture of synthetic resin will produce enough paint to coat one medium tank.

CHAPTER 25

Sold Out?

HELEN glared across the fire at Sandy. "I knew you were crazy about her. I've known it all along, but I didn't think you'd sell out to her without even making a struggle!"

Sandy felt the familiar cornered sensation. "That's strong language," he observed.

"It's time for strong language. Oh, I know you can't see it. Tyra has magicked you. But another woman can see how she has been using you for her own purposes!"

Sandy felt hot color rush to his face. Hot words, too, rushed to his lips. He choked them back, with an effort.

"I don't see how I could have made any other decision."

"Of course not! When Tyra wiggled her eyelashes at you and told you it was best to take her father's offer! Of course, you couldn't make any other decision for that would have offended Tyra. And that would never have done. Tyra and her father must have their gold, even if you must abandon your search for the Maya codex!"

"I'm not abandoning my search, only delaying it for a time."

"You might as well be abandoning it," Helen retorted, her eyes narrowing to slits. "For—if it suits the Flemings—you'll not enter the Chamber of the Serpent God again."

The blood throbbed in Sandy's temples. "You seem to have a pretty low opinion of my integrity, Helen."

"I have a high opinion of Tyra's power over you, that's all," she flung back. "By pretending that she cares for you she can wrap you around her little finger . . ."

Sandy interrupted sharply. "By pretending she cares . . .?"

"Exactly." A scornful smile made its appearance upon Helen's face. "Oh, I saw how she melted in your arms that night at the camp. As pretty a piece of play-acting as I've ever seen. I knew you were completely taken in. But, today, tonight, when you found out that she has always mistrusted you, from the first, I thought surely your eyes would be opened and you'd put her in her place by turning down that ridiculous offer! I hoped you would for — for the sake of the whole expedition, not just yourself!"

'Gold-Diggers'

"I realize that you're saying a lot of things you don't mean, Helen, because you're jealous of Tyra — of our caring for each other . . ."

"Of course you'd think that! But if you don't believe me, ask Gil how he feels about this. You can't accuse him of jealousy!"

The woman was beside herself. Her babyish lips were firmed to a line, and a crusading light was in her eyes that Sandy did not recall ever having seen there before. He thought again that she had changed since they left Onha.

Sandy looked over at Gil—Gil the faithful. "Do you agree with the things Helen says," he asked slowly.

Gil stirred a little. "You're the head of this expedition, chief. You can do what you like. I don't intend to question your motives. Where you lead, I'll always follow."

Sandy recognized the evasion in Gil's speech. He asked, more grimly, "Do you believe the Flemings are using me for their own ends?"

Gil looked as if he'd rather be in any spot than where he was. "I don't like to say this, chief, but since you've requested my opinion I'll shoot. I may not know the whole story—between you and Tyra I mean—but it does look as if there might be something in what Helen says. Certainly, the Flemings are interested only in riffling the rocks for gold—and that includes Tyra, of course. I can't say that I blame them. In their shoes I'd probably feel the same way. But it's plain as paint that they don't give a whoop what happens to our project. They're saving their own skins and to hell with us."

To Sandy's mind came the memory of Tyra's surrender to his arms and lips. She hadn't trusted him then. She had admitted it herself, here by the fire. While her lips returned his kisses, her heart was filled with suspicions. Was that love?

And now she had jockeyed him into a delay that might well prove fatal to his plans — plans that should be more important to her than her own, if she really cared about him!

"Tyra guided us up here," he said thickly. "We owe her something for that, no matter what my personal feelings are. I'd be a heel to ask them to abandon their project after Tyra brought us here."

Helen said soothingly. "Their project! Nothing but a gold-digging expedition. What is that compared to finding the codex? What are a handful of gold nuggets compared to unraveling the Mayan hieroglyphics? The Flemings should be proud — anyone should be proud—to help in a work of such benefit to mankind!"

Her vehemence about their quest astonished Sandy. "Well, as I see it, there's nothing we can do about it now. I've given my word."

Helen sat up straighter. "You mean you're going through with it—the Flemings' way—that nothing Gil or I might have to say will change you?"

"It's settled."

Fury

Then Helen sent Sandy a look that he was never to forget. There was stubbornness in it, and defiance and maybe a little pity. With an abrupt movement she sprang up, crossed to her tent and vanished inside. Sandy heard the zipper pulled together with a vicious jerk, and silence followed.

Gil shifted his position. "I knew the roof was going to blow off, chief. But I couldn't stop it."

"It wasn't your fault. This has probably been brewing for a long time. She may feel better for having got it off her mind. I hope so, anyhow."

"I thought at first that it was jealousy, too," Gil said, apparently reading between Sandy's words. "But I'm not so sure that's all there is to it. Something has happened to her on this trip, chief. She's not the same as when we left Onha. Maybe you've noticed."

Sandy nodded, his mind only half upon Helen and her outburst. Hadn't he known, always, that his hold upon Tyra was at best only half a hold? Even in that moment of her surrender she had seemed remote, mysterious, a being ruled by laws hidden from him.

What, after all, did he know of her? Of her life? On the trail she had told him bits, only bits.

Sandy realized, with a start, that Gil was speaking again. "You don't feel like hashing over all of this, and I'm darned sure I don't, chief, so I'm turning in."

Sandy roused himself. "I'm turning in, too. Big day tomorrow. Have to move camp."

Action on Home Front

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT drove home to the American people in his fireside chat Monday night the fact that the home front is of equal importance to battle fronts in winning this war.

In fact, the President indicates that right now the greatest danger facing the American people is one arising from within. Action is necessary at once to "avert a disaster which would interfere with winning the war," he told his listeners.

The talk to the people followed by a few hours his message to congress demanding legislation by Oct. 1 to control farm prices. He linked with it a definite promise that when this legislation is passed he will invoke his wartime powers to stabilize wages.

These, in the President's opinion, are the two steps still needed to prevent the rising curve of inflation and put the nation's economy on a sound basis for the duration.

Congress has been following the old and dishonored custom of putting off until after election all controversial legislation. The entire lower house and part of the senate will be elected in November and members have been reluctant to take action on anything which may cost the members any votes but the President told them that anti-inflation legislation cannot wait on politics. Things may be out of hand by November, he warned and he served notice that unless congress acts by Oct. 1 he will use his powers to curb rising costs.

After he had disposed of the main business at hand, the President gave the people a report on the war. He promised no early or easy victory but he promised the listening world that Hitler will be beaten in Europe. That can mean nothing else but a second front and the invasion of Europe.

If America will put the home front in order and keep it so, the armed forces will finish their job, he said. Strong and bold action on both fronts are essential to victory.

Women at Work

A FEW minutes near the entrances of many a war industry plant at change of shifts brings realization that women already are playing a great part in the war production effort. However, Man Power Commissioner Paul V. McNutt says that 5,000,000 more must go to work in 1943, at least 1,500,000 of them in essential war work.

Most of the able-bodied men of the nation are now employed. No more can be taken from the rural areas without curtailing food production. Other workers are needed to operate new plants and still more must replace young men called up for army service as draft deferments taper off.

Some will be wives of men in service. Some are women who go to work because they know it is a chance to serve their country. Some are the women who normally work because they must support themselves.

Whatever their motive they are filling a need which can be met in no other way. We are becoming more aware, day by day, that we are in a war which is everybody's fight, that it looks like it will last a long time and that America will be called upon, more and more, to give up its life-as-usual routine.

Soft, white, protected hands were once woman's pride. Now strong, able and willing ones doing their part in her country's service are her badge of merit.

Army Christmas

AMERICAN soldiers will observe Christmas in all the four corners of the earth and a friendly greeting from the folks back home will mean more to these soldiers than ever before. There are 500,000 of them now on foreign soil and there will be more by Christmas.

It is not too early to plan their gifts. Parcels for men in foreign service must be mailed during October. Importance of Christmas in keeping high the spirit of the fighting forces is emphasized in a striking way by the mere fact that the government will give the parcels prompt handling in spite of the pressing need for every inch of cargo space for carrying war materials.

Don't send bulky articles, the government pleads. Confine parcels to shoe box size. Don't cheat by trying to send several small parcels but select the gifts so that all can go into one little box.

If you don't have any close relative or friend in the service, try to think of some other fellow you know who may not get a gift. He will be most appreciative of all.

If you can't think of any service man to whom you can send a gift, it's a fine idea to give $1 to the Red Cross which will use the money to buy one of the equipped service kits which all the men need and want.

However you do it, have a part in seeing that no American serving his country is forgotten on Christmas day.

PLEASANT CONTEMPLATION.

One nice thing about a zipper is the satisfaction which you feel when you pull it apart and it sounds like a rip when it is not a rip, but just the sound of the zipper.—Wellington Monitor-Press.

News Behind the News

Roosevelt Believed To Have Changed Wage-Price Talk at Last Minute.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Mr. Roosevelt did not submit his wage-price program to congress Labor Day as planned. All he said to congress was (in effect)

You repeal that obnoxious farm-price inflating law within three weeks, and allow me freely to move against our rising threat of inflation disaster, or I will put my program into effect, regardless of your restriction."

Something happened the last few days before the message to cause a change in White House plans.

The President's trouble-compromiser, Judge Rosenman, had submitted to Mr. Roosevelt several recommendations for executive action without congressional approval (see column published Aug 26.) These headed up toward inauguration of an overall economic control board, made up of various government department chiefs, (McNutt, Henderson, Davis, Eccles, Nelson, Wickard.)

Mr. Roosevelt, tired of creating super-boards on top of failures, and mindful of some inner criticism, then seemed to swerve toward naming a chairman of the board with such strong powers that he could be popularly known as a czar over prices and wages.

For that job he possibly had decided upon a man, not too much of a laborite, or farm bloc man, to be suspected of favoritism in administering wages and prices.

Those Mentioned for Job

Presumably he wanted someone who would establish the confidence of the country (Baruch and Lehman being mentioned in most of the newspaper accounts, although some threw in the names of Justice Douglas, and other left-leaning New Dealers who did not fill the requirement, or McNutt who is already running for president in 1944?)

When Mr. Roosevelt tried this program out on congressmen in advance, he ran into objections, mainly, from the farm bloc. Some of them, like Senator Norris, of Nebraska, spoke out publicly.

A day or two before the President was scheduled to speak, Norris openly warned him congress would "raise hell" if he thus trampled on its Constitutional prerogatives.

So the President decided to give them three weeks to do it the regular way, their way—if they could.

His threat to do it anyway Oct. 1, implied his own doubt that the farm bloc would relent and let him do it.

Needed Action

No one now doubts the wisdom of freezing wages and prices. It should have been done nine months ago, when the war started, as Bernard Baruch (still the fairest and smartest economist in contact with Mr. Roosevelt) then told the White House.

It should have been done last spring when the present Henderson price setup was instituted by congress over two-thirds of the prices of the nation, leaving one-third untouched and encouraging farm prices to run up. The Henderson system has been a brazen political makeshift compromise with the unions and farm bloc.

The part of it that Mr. Roosevelt did not tell in his message, and the story with which the farm bloc men have justified themselves for their own selfish politics, is that Mr. Roosevelt was not holding down the unions.

His various labor boards let some union wages ease up higher along a cost of living yardstick—and in the pending General Motors case a labor board panel even went beyond the cost of living justification for a further wage increase. The farm bloc men said:

"You are letting the unions get theirs; we will get ours."

This weakness in the President's position still prevails in his message. While his presentation of the case against rising wages and prices is straightforward, and non-political, and his plan to act carries the same honest, open handed general tone, he did not say how, or how firmly, he will "stabilize" union wages, (significantly, perhaps, he does not use the words "fix" or "freeze" in this connection, but only in connection with prices.)

All he said about wages was that he proposes to "stabilize" them himself.

Analysis Later

His program, therefore, cannot be analyzed yet. While his objective is unanswerably right, the most important question of whether his program will work, or even whether it will be fair and firm can be answered only after it is announced.

People will look very closely, for the wording of the labor provisions especially, to see whether he will leave enough loopholes through which unions can edge their particular stipends still higher.

Also the character of the man he will appoint to do the job may be more revealing as to the real extent of his program, which is now being prematurely christened by the headline writers as a "wage-price freezing" device.

So far it sounds more like wage "stabilization" and price "freezing."

Russia's Guerrillas

One Who Reached New York Tells How They Fight.

KOBTZEFF VLADIMIR
Soldier of the people.

By CLAYTON J. IRWIN
Wide World Features Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Kobtzeff Vladimir is a merchant seaman and he never served a day in the Russian army. He probably never heard of the Rangers; maybe he doesn't know much, either, about the British Commandos.

But when the last German is chased out of Russia there ought to be a few oorahs for Vladimir and the thousands of overalled patriots who, applying Commando technique, helped the Russian army kick Hitler's timetable around for more than a year.

For four months Vladimir was a guerrilla—to the Russians, partizani — while the Germans hammered at Leningrad. That was a year ago and, if you remember your current history, the Germans besieged Leningrad but never got around to capturing it.

Campaign of Destruction

Vladimir and his pals camped in the hills before Leningrad, acted as snipers by day and sallied forth by night to blow up German truck columns, blast bridges and harass enemy communications. They mingled with the populace in captured villages and picked up bits of military information. They had no military status, and they feared nothing but capture. A guerrilla couldn't expect anything as painless as the firing squad.

Vladimir, 34, was between sea voyages when the German advance on Leningrad became serious. He volunteered for guerrilla duty and was assigned to a 55-man detachment—clerks, bakers, students, seamen. The eldest was 56 and the youngest 20.

Each Unit Organized

There is a popular belief that Russian guerrillas operate without organization and on a hit-or-miss basis. Instead, says Vladimir, each detachment is armed by the military and given a general plan of operation. Members of the detachment elect their own commander, who sets up smaller units inside the detachment. Vladimir was leader of one of the three units in his detachment.

Three times in the four months they returned to Leningrad for supplies and orders. On one trip out they had been provisioned for 10 days; they were gone 38 and had to sneak most of their food out of captured villages.

Attacked Supply Columns

Several detachments operating with Vladimir's in the Leningrad-Pskov area managed, at one time, to scare the Germans out of moving supplies at night. They cleverly planted connecting explosive charges in the road at intervals of several hundred yards, then after a few German vehicles had passed by in safety, those following were blasted.

They never took prisoners but eliminated enough German patrols to keep in guns and ammunition. In many a captured village they visited, they saw the familiar signs offering 3,000 rubles for the head of each guerrilla delivered to German authorities.

The Road Back

The last trip to Leningrad practically wore out the detachment and almost finished Vladimir. For three days, the men waded an ice-clogged river in water chest deep. At Leningrad they were hospitalized. Vladimir developed rheumatism and was declared unfit for further duty.

Of the original detachment, one had been captured, three killed in action and 13 wounded.

Back in the merchant marine, Vladimir came to New York on a freighter, and that's how he happened to tell his story at the Soviet consulate. If his rheumatism improves, he hopes to rejoin the guerrillas.

The Russians, he says, won't stop fighting until they're victorious. Citizens who never did anything more deadly than chuck a rock at a tin can are dying with courage and spirit in their determination to drive out the Nazi invaders.

"The Russian people have seen the Germans kill," says Vladimir, "and now they have a great bitterness...."

It was Friday, Sept. 9, 1932.

An order granting the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. permission to abandon the line between Marion and Bucyrus was issued by the state public utilities commission.

Darius Washburn of near Moral was in a critical condition as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident at Russellville, Ky. C. V. Hudson of Marion who was with him in the car was also injured, but not seriously.

It was announced that veterans of all wars wounded or gassed in action would meet in Marion the latter part of September to receive purple hearts, a decoration awarded to wounded veterans by the war department as a feature of the celebration of the bi-centennial of George Washington. A preliminary arrangements committee was named by the Marion Rainbow Division unit. It consisted of Fred Miller, W. H. Wills, Lloyd Rausch, James A. Uline, Dr. F. L. Thomas and Dana Daniels. It was the hope of the committee to bring General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the U. S. army, to Marion to present the purple hearts.

Mrs Warren G. Harding was critically ill in the White House at Washington. Attending her were Dr. George T. Harding, brother of the President, who had come to Washington from his home in Columbus, Dr. C. E. Sawyer, personal physician of President and Mrs. Harding, and Drs. Finney and Boone. Dr. Charles Mayo, celebrated Rochester, Minn. surgeon, was to arrive in Washington Sunday. The matter of an immediate operation was to be held in abeyance until Dr. Mayo's arrival.

China's Concern for India

Wants Allies To Give That Country Promised Freedom.

By JOHN GROVER

CONSIDERABLE concern has been expressed in the capital over the possible morale effect on China of the current crisis in India.

The Chinese are vital to successful conduct of the war by the United Nations. It is not too much to say that any lessening of China's resistance would approach disaster.

There has been no indication whatsoever of Chinese defection. However, it is the consensus of many well-placed observers here that China watches developments in India with a careful eye. The visit of Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek to India at a time when China's own affairs were desperate attests the importance the Chinese attach to India.

THE generalissimo's statement at Calcutta Feb. 21 that he "hopes and believes Britain, without waiting for any demand on the part of the Indian people, will as speedily as possible give them real political power," is more than an indication of his sympathies. More recently the Chinese have tactfully suggested that the U. S. lend its good offices in the controversy, which shows a continued keen interest in the situation.

China has had her share of exploitation by outside powers. The extra-territorial rights of other nations before the war were hangovers from the day when China was the world's stepchild. It's unlikely that China's allies would ask, or the Chinese grant, a return of such privileges.

However, thoughtful persons reason that any evidence of a "Colonel Blimp" attitude in dealing with India would have adverse repercussions in a China that was so recently the grab-bag for greedy westerners. Such an attitude might well raise the speculation that the stupidity and intolerance that marked the "lesser breeds beyond the pale" era of Colonial exploitation are not dead but dormant.

ONE thing is certain. Axis propagandists already have scored telling blows against the allies, by harping endlessly on the discrepancies between the "Four Freedoms" ideal and the failure to extend the fullness of the Four Freedoms to minority or subject racial and religious groups.

They told the Burmese—successfully, remember — that the Four Freedoms were hooey, asking in effect, "Where are yours?" Burma was lost as much through defection of the Burmese as through military superiority. Sober advices from India indicate a similar line is making headway there.

Likewise, the axis has a powerful sales talk to non-white nations in political repression of the American Negro in some southern states. That the Negro is widely denied the vote and freedom of action is a matter of world knowledge.

IN axis hands, this is twisted into a damaging weapon. The axis can and does challenge our honesty in urging political freedom abroad while denying it to an important minority at home. Broadcast interception records disclose that this is a favorite nazi theme in attempting to divide the white and non-white allies.

The Chinese, right now, are keepers of United States destiny in Asia. The Japanese retreat in the coastal provinces, and the resignation of Foreign Minister Togo, indicate a move against Russia or India. In either case, Chinese manpower must implement the counter-blow.

That's why the handling of the Indian crisis is deemed so important by astute observers. They say it would be the veriest tragedy if the negotiations indicate that "Colonel Blimp" is in the saddle again.

Blood Bank

They Tapped Mr. Gruber But Had To Give It Back and Now They Think Maybe He Got New Blood.

By DAMON RUNYON

DEAR SIR Last night when I got home from work my wife Ethel was not there and my supper wasn't ready but pretty soon she came in all out of breath and ses O Joe I'm so sorry I was over to Missus Grubers house and I didn't realize it was getting so late. I'll have something for you before you finish reading the paper.

I ses thats all right sweets I'm in no hurry. I ses if you like I'll take you down to Grogans for a bite and she ses no I have everything in the ice box for you and its too hot to go out. Besides I want to take something over to poor Missus Gruber afterwards and you can go with me and cheer her up.

I ses whats wrong with her Ethel? Ethel ses she is worried about Mister Gruber. She has had quite a termble experience today. Its all on account of him being so patriotic. He went down to the blood bank this morning and gave them a pint of his blood. I ses a pint Ethel? I ses why I don't think Gruber ever had a pint of blood in him. I ses I guess maybe you mean a teaspoon. Ethel ses no I'm sure it was more than that Joe.

I SES well theres nothing the matter with that. I ses everybody gives a little blood when they think of it. I ses I gave quite a gob myself and she ses I know Joe but you have got more to spare than Mister Gruber. He fainted on his way home and they had to send for an ambulance and Doctor Grimshaw. He was really in bad shape for awhile Joe.

I ses I should think he would be because I remember I didn't feel so stout myself for awhile after I gave that blood. I ses is Gruber all right now? Ethel ses thats what we don't know. When the doctor found he had given all that blood he went to the blood bank and made them give back all of Mister Grubers blood and he put it back in Mister Gruber again and before long Mister Gruber got up and walked out of the house and has not returned since. Thats why Missus Gruber is worrying.

I ses why sweets I don't see anything for her to worry about. If Gruber was able to walk out of the house he is certainly okay and as for him not coming back right away maybe he got in a pinochle game or something and got stuck. I ses do you mean to tell me you had to stay with old lady Gruber all day because she is worrying about a little think like that and that you have to go back there again?

ETHEL ses well Joe you simply don't know about Mister Gruber. He never before in his life stayed away from home more than an hour without telephoning Missus Gruber and letting her know where he was and now he has been away for six or seven hours and not a word from him and that after having that fainting spell too. I ses O I see Ethel. I ses the old dame is worried that he may have had another spell hay? I ses well maybe I better inquire around the neighborhood after supper and see if anybody has seen him.

Ethel ses no she is not worrying about him having a fainting spell Joe. She is worried for fear they didn't really give him back his own blood but somebodys who was livelier. Missus Gruber ses the way he went out of the house made her suspect that he had the wrong blood because he was humming a tune and he never did that before in his life. I ses Ethel I guess I won't bother to look for him then. I ses I figure a guy like that has got somebody elses blood coming to him.

Yours truly,
JOE TURP.

Meatless Days

"Meatless Tuesdays" and "Wheatless Wednesdays" were one of the striking features of the program of voluntary rationing instituted by Herbert Hoover, food administrator, during the last war. Then, as now, it was the demands of the Allies, plus an increased American demand, due to high war wages, that brought about the principal food shortages—in sugar, meats and flour. Hoover was urged from many quarters to institute compulsory rationing for these and other commodities, but he wrote after the war:

"My colleagues and I believed that the spirit of self-sacrifice of the American people could be relied upon for so great a service as to accomplish the necessary results upon a voluntary basis. To have rationed the whole American population would have required the service of thousands of personnel drawn from production and war, and would have entailed the greatest difficulties and expense." A campaign secured, from 14,000,000 families, 7,000 hotels and eating places and 425,000 dealers in food, signed pledges to carry out the conservation programs suggested by the Food Administration from time to time.

Albert N. Merritt, another official of the World War Food Administration, has said that while most families participated to a greater or less extent in the voluntary rationing program, "there were many who paid little attention to the appeals made. If we are to judge by the statistical records of consumption."

Pinch-Hitting for the Boss

By Wide World Features

CAIRO—While many a man will dream of what he'd do if he were in the boss's place, few actually seize the opportunity as Trooper Thomas Hawken, of the County of London Yeomanry, did in the armored battle of May 27. Hawken gets the Military Medal.

Hawken was driving a tank when an enemy shell struck the turret, wounding his commander and operator, who fell on the gunner, pinning him down and disabling him. Hawken carried on, keeping his tank up with the rest of the squadron, using his turret machine gun as the sole weapon.

Eventually a lull came and Hawken pulled his tank out, unloaded the wounded men. Then he rejoined the squadron and with the gunner remained in action the rest of the day.

Lance-Corporal Stanley Frank Dovey, of the same outfit, also received the Military Medal. On June 13 (Black Saturday) the tank he was driving was hit and four of the crew wounded. The commander was able to evacuate three of the wounded to a nearby tank. There, Dovey's tank, still being engaged, was set on fire and the fourth wounded man was trapped in the turret.

Dovey jammed the throttle down to get the tank in action, climbed from the driver's seat into the main turret, put the fire out, traversed the turret so that the wounded man could be extricated, got back into the driver's seat and trundled the damaged tank and the wounded man to a place where both could receive attention. As a result a man's life was saved as well as a tank.

U. S. EXTENDS AUTO CONTROL

Federal Authority Placed Over Trucks, Buses and Taxicabs.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Pearing improvement of the nation's war effort through loss of transportation services the government moved today to control operations of trucks, buses and taxicabs by Nov. 15.

An office of defense transportation order yesterday directed operators of the commercial vehicles affected to carry a certificate of war necessity to obtain tires, tubes and accessories.

Describing the order as "a drastic move to obtain further conservation of such equipment for war purposes," the ODT estimated about 5,000,000 trucks, 150,000 buses, 50,000 cars and similar vehicles would come under its control.

Some Exemptions

Passenger cars and motorcycles are exempted from the latest regulations supplementing the conservation program already in effect.

Meanwhile, a new move developed to bring nationwide gasoline rationing.

Senator Green (D-RI) wrote President Roosevelt that extension of rationing beyond the 17 eastern states now affected was the only means of "maintaining our present transportation needs and of supplying the eastern seaboard with fuel for heating this winter."

Green said automobiles were being withdrawn from the highways at the rate of 1,000,000 a month and that by the end of 1945 there would be but 4,500,000 while "our present economy demands at least 20,000,000 cars to make up for the deficiency of our public transportation systems."

Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, said the certificates for commercial vehicles would require a tire check every 5,000 miles or every 60 days, whichever occurred first, to assure proper inflation and repairs.

All Types Covered

The certificates, he added, will be issued to all types of trucks, vehicles built primarily for transporting property and passengers, and others available for public rental including ambulances and hearses.

Under an arrangement between ODT and the office of price administration, coupons authorizing purchase of gasoline, tires and tubes will be issued only to operators presenting certificates. An ODT official who refused to be quoted by name, said violators would be liable to loss of coupons preventing use of their vehicles.

In addition to private passenger cars, exemptions include commercial vehicles operated for military services, those used by dealers exclusively for sales purposes, and cars having a capacity of not more than seven persons which are used in group riding to carry persons to and from work.

BEGIN WORK ON FARM PRICES

Congress Gets Down to Business as Criticism of "Orders" Dies Down.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — An initial blaze of congressional opposition to President Roosevelt's demand for legislation to stabilize farm prices subsided somewhat today as administration leaders labored over a bill which they hoped would appeal to farm and labor groups alike.

Chairman Brown (D-Mich) of a senate subcommittee which has handled previous price control legislation announced that a comprehensive measure would be introduced in the senate tomorrow and would be taken up by the full banking committee either Friday or Monday.

Brown, declaring both houses should act promptly and simultaneously on the President's request, said:

"While some may feel that he put the proposition rather bluntly by telling us 'You do it or I will,' and by putting a time limit on a rather slow moving congress, it must be remembered that action is vital and vital now."

See Time Extension

There was little apprehension on Capitol Hill that the President would move to stabilize prices by executive order on Oct. 1, provided congress had made good progress toward that end by that time.

Although details of the bill remained to be worked out, Brown sketched a broad program which pointed toward controlling industrial wages as well as the levels for farm crops.

Agreeing with the President that floors were as desirable as ceilings for farm prices, the Michigan senator said they probably would be included in the program. The proposed bill would call for repeal of section 3 of the price control act, which provides that price ceilings on farm products may not be set at less than 110 per cent of parity, or the market price as of last Oct. 1, last Dec. 15, or the average price from 1919 to 1929, whichever is highest.

Brown indicated the measure probably would "authorize" the Chief Executive to control wages, but added that the authorization might be turned into a directive before the bill was enacted. Whether wage floors as well as ceilings would be stabilished remained to be decided.

Norris Pledges Support

Senator Norris (Ind-Neb), a member of the agriculture committee, pledged his support to Mr. Roosevelt's proposal and said he could see no necessity for lengthy hearings.

"I'd rather support it and put it through than talk about it," Norris said.

Some lawmakers from farm states let it be known they might be satisfied if the farm price floor were established at 95 per cent of parity.

U. S. TANK OUTPUT NOW IMPRESSIVE

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 9—Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today that the nation's tank production had reached "an impressive figure," and that the nation turned out more war planes last month than Germany, Japan and Italy combined.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers convention, Patterson added that tank production would be doubled in December. "We are putting our best efforts into bringing out new planes of designs far superior to any that we have now," he asserted.

Praising the type of men in the armed forces, their training, equipment and leadership, the under secretary declared the Japanese "already know that they blundered when they counted on Americans being soft, selfish and easy-going."

"Our soldiers can take it and they can hand it out," he added. "They are men resolved to win this war."

Patterson said that in speed, range, toughness of armor and hitting power, the U. S. medium tank, either the M3 or the M4, "is superior to the best German tank", "proved in combat in Egypt."

Combat records also, he declared, have proved the Curtiss P-40 Hawks better than the Japanese Zero plane. Performances of American heavy bombers were "impressive" on all battle fronts, the undersecretary said, and in pursuit ships, the Republic P-47 Thunderbolt was termed "the swiftest plane in the air."

Citing a combat box score from Aug. 1-29, Patterson said the P-40's shot down 13 zeros and four bombers with a loss of two P-40's and the Bell P-39's destroyed 13 Zeros and probably five others against a loss of four U. S. planes.

"In one engagement alone on Aug. 23 over Port Darwin, Australia," he added, "47 Japanese planes (27 bombers and 20 Zeros) were attacked by 20 P-40's. Eight Zeros and four bombers were shot down without the loss of a single United States plane."

Patterson declared that the axis had veteran soldiers and great sources of weapons to present "a long lead that we must overcome."

BOMBER AND APARTMENT BURN AFTER NEWARK AIR DISASTER

The army bomber bounced off a house and crashed into this apartment building in downtown Newark. The plane's gasoline tank dropped into the basement of the building and exploded.

Bodies of Crash Victims Recovered

first it was an airplane, then decided it was lightning and ran on without looking back.

His father, who lives near the scene of the crash, ran into the street and met his son. The boy was limping then, and he said:

"I guess a rock hit my leg, Dad."

An investigation showed a deep gash which doctors at a hospital said evidently was inflicted by flying concrete.

The end of the apartment where Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Wiusch were working was sheared off completely—an effect comparable to clipping the building in two with huge shears. A bathtub hung crazily from one corner where the bathroom had been.

Immediately below was the kitchen in which the women had been working. Only one wall was left standing. On a wall upstairs a clock still hung, its hands stopped a few minutes after noon, the time of the crash.

The plane was buried so far into the building that newcomers looked about and asked, "Where is the airplane?"

The occupants of the plane were identified by officers of Wright Field in Dayton. Watson and Arens were on leave and taking a trip east.

A few minutes after the crash Newark's civilian defense corps roped off the area and helped the fire department battle the flaming residences. Later a contingent of service men, commanded by Capt. W. A. Butcher of Lockbourne air base at Columbus took charge.

Witnesses said the plane, with one motor missing, circled the Newark business district several times.

Bursts Into Flames

As the plane hit the house witnesses said the entire structure burst into flames as if a gasoline tank had plunged into the basement and exploded. Parts of the big ship flew across an intersecting street, damaging the home of F. J. Edmonds, and knocking a huge stone pillar from the front of the former East Church of Christ Scientist, now occupied by the offices of Dr. Roland Jones.

Both the Edmonds and Jones homes were damaged by flames. Also demolished by flying debris was a drug store 200 feet away, operated by George Arensberg.

Officers said they could recall no Ohio accident involving service planes which took such a toll of military personnel as lives since the Shenandoah crashed near Ava, 17 years ago, killing 14.

Flames that ate into the wreckage of the bomber left little for investigators to work on as they sought an explanation of the accident.

None of the airmen who rode the plane out of Wright Field at 11:40 a. m. survived to tell what made the big ship go out of control.

Firemen who reached the scene could not approach the wreckage for a matter of minutes because the blaze was so hot.

James S. Good, a filling station employe, said that parts of the plane were "scattered all over the block" and added that "you wouldn't have known it was a plane unless you had seen it with your own eyes."

Drug Store Hit

George Arensberg, proprietor of a drug store, said that he was in his establishment a block and a half from the crash when he "heard a tremendous explosion. As I stood in my prescription room I heard the explosion and then pieces of steel shot through the wall at my right. I examined them and found they were pieces of a motor."

William G. Loos, proprietor of a coal and junk yard two blocks from the scene, said flames shot "100 feet in the air."

"The plane came in over the city so low that I was afraid it was going to crash right here and wipe out my place."

Mrs. Weston is the daughter of J. F. Irwin, former superintendent of the Newark division of the B. & O.

Good said that he heard "plane motors racing terribly" and looked up to see the plane circling crazily overhead.

"First it clipped the roof of a house, then it plowed into an apartment building," he related. "It burst into flames and then crashed into a house on the other side of the street."

Grant Heiser, another eye-witness, said:

"My attention was attracted by a roar. Looking up, I saw the planes tail pieces fall away.

"The plane was up only about 800 feet when it curved down over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad passenger depot and demolished one of the auxiliary buildings."

Aunt of Marion Men Is Killed

Mrs. Dolly Campbell, aunt of two Marion men, was killed yesterday when an army bomber crashed into her home in Newark. She was the aunt of Earl Lewis of 384 Blaine avenue and Lewis Jones of 305 Superior street.

Mrs. Campbell's body, badly burned, was found wedged in the debris after the plane, which had lost a wing, crashed north of the business district in Newark.

Mrs. Campbell was the widow of Edward Campbell, a Knox county farmer. She was born in Radnor to Sam and Mary Gallant Lewis. Her father was a native of Wales. Surviving with the nephews and several cousins is one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Teel of Sunbury.

United Nations' Military Plans Near Maturity

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Those war-speeches by President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill served as encouraging notice that the United Nations are verging on military maturity.

Both declarations displayed a tone of certainty that could only be based on achievements which, although they lag far short of what they ought to be, still are leading surely to victory. Facts warranting such calculation aren't hard to find, for these points stand out clearly:

(1). American war production has reached a point where its tremendous weight is making itself felt. Its momentum is increasing steadily, for we are nowhere near our peak. Movements of our troops and equipment abroad pyramids. By implication President Roosevelt let it be known that more than half a million Yankee troops already have been sent overseas.

(2). July, August and thus far in September we've vastly reduced the depredations of the U-boats in the western Atlantic.

(3). We not only have been holding the Japs, but have assumed the initiative with splendid success in several sectors.

(4). The blockade of Europe still holds tight—one of the greatest of the allied assets—and the axis strength is on the downgrade, due to lack of resources of all kinds.

(5). Intensification of the American and British bombing of Germany is raising havoc with Hitler's factories and transport. There's no question now about allied superiority in the air over Europe.

(6). Thus far Hitler has failed to reach the objectives of his mammoth assault on the Caucasus and Middle East. He has achieved much, but still that magnificent Red line remains unbroken, although it has had to pull back and it has sagged.

With the fall rains already falling, every day that the Bolshevists keep Hitler out of his garden of Eden brings nearer the hell of winter which soon will clamp down again on the Nazi army armies of the man who would be tyrant over the world.

And it's almost axiomatic that if the fuehrer doesn't get his hands on the resources, and the strategic bases, of the Caucasus and Middle East this fall, he will surely will be nailed on the old barn door. His winter resources won't permit him to duplicate this great offensive again come another spring.

What Comes Next

All this gives the allies something concrete to go on with. So what next?

Well, it means that we must swing definitely into the offensive. And both President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill promised action.

From now on it must be bullets and not words. Announcement of our intention to assume the offensive undoubtedly was calculated to give further assurance to Russia. Churchill's report to commons seemed to make it clear that one of his chief reasons for visiting Stalin in Moscow recently was to convince the Communist chief that his allies do mean business.

Churchill's description of his meeting with this "man of massive and strong personality, suitable to the stormy times in which he has lived," gives the impression that Stalin, "a man direct and even blunt in speech," definitely and felt that the allies could have done much more than they had. Apparently Churchill and his host had a real heart-to-heart talk. It would have been interesting to listen in, for Stalin has a habit of stripping all skeletons of trimmings and getting down to the rattling bones, while Churchill himself is about as outspoken as you find 'em. Anyway, the British premier says:

"I believe I made him feel we are good and faithful comrades in this war, but that deeds and not words will prove that."

MISS ALICE M. CROW CLAIMED BY DEATH

Prior to moving to Oakland Miss Crow was cashier and bookkeeper 15 years for the old C. D. & M. Electric Co when the offices were on North State street. Before going with the electric company she was cashier for the Uhler-Phillips Co department store.

Miss Crow was a graduate of Marion High school. She was a member of First Presbyterian church of Marion and later of First Presbyterian church in Oakland, and was active in church and King's Daughters work in both cities.

She was a past state treasurer of the King's Daughters of Northern California and was head of the women's organizations of the Oakland church. A member of the Whatsoever circle of the King's Daughters here for more than 30 years, she was made an honorary member several years ago. She was a past president of the Marion county King's Daughters' organization.

Surviving Miss Crow are three brothers, French Crow, Marion attorney, Fred Crow who is manager of the Erlanger theater in Chicago, and Bert E. Crow who is associated with his brother in Chicago; a nephew, Richard Crow who is associated with the department of justice in Los Angeles, and six nieces, Mrs. Grigsby, Mrs. R. J. Her parents lived in Waldo for many years and her father, a veteran of four years' service in the Civil war, was at one time postmaster at Waldo.

For many years the family home in Marion was at the corner of Church and Orchard streets.

The funeral will be conducted Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the Edwin K. Smith Home for Funerals on East Center street, where friends may call after 4 p. m. Thursday. Rev. Howard L. Olewiler of First Presbyterian church will officiate. Burial will be made in Marion cemetery.

Vichy Protest Rejected

Meanwhile, Vichy quarters said Washington's blunt rejection of the Vichy protest over American air raids on Nazi-occupied France had not yet been received officially.

These quarters asserted that the bombing of Rouen by U. S. army flying fortresses—the immediate cause of the protest — was executed "at Stalin's orders."

In Washington, the state department disclosed last night that the protest, made personally by France's pro-German Premier Pierre Laval, was "immediately" rejected. Moreover, Laval was told in forthright terms that "military plants operated by or for Germany and other German military properties in France will be bombed at every opportunity in the future."

County's First Army Camp

In the first place, the battalion was activated in May and is made up largely of men drawn from specialized lines of work, including among its officers architects and construction company men who held responsible positions in civilian life. Many of the men can handle a bulldozer or other pieces of heavy machinery like an average person can operate an automobile. There are railroad builders, men experienced in big-scale earth moving projects. Virtually all have some special skill or training that would make them valuable in almost any kind of construction assignment.

Learning their jobs and expanding their experience by actual practice, the men are building railroads, moving earth on a big scale and their present job also involves dismantling a part of the Marion county CCC camp.

Represent Wide Area

The men come from all parts of the nation. One large group is from the Pacific northwest. Other states with large representations include, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Nevada and Utah, and there are smaller groups from almost every state in the union.

Some of them were in construction trades. The range is from laborers on highway projects to a former railroad yard superintendent. Among the commissioned officers the range is almost as great. Most of the officers are graduate engineers.

The majority of officers came from the region of Boston and most of them are former engineers or contractors in the Boston area.

The battalion started its existence in Louisiana, remaining there until the transfer to Marion county. After six weeks of intensive training in basic military subjects, the men turned to a study of their primary activity, which is heavy construction work.

Pleased with Marion

The men like Marion. From the time of their arrival they have remarked about the friendly attention they have received and voice appreciation of the things that have been done for them such as the Canteen dance and the opening of the Y. M. C. A. to them.

Although they have access to the shower rooms at the Y. M. C. A. and a few other conveniences, their life primarily is that of "roughing it." They live in tents, work all day in the open, line up at the field kitchen for their meals and line up again in front of three big kettles of hot water, one of them heavy with suds, to wash their mess kits after their meal is over. Their day's work and chores around camp would more than consume the energies of the average civilian but their training has given them enough pep to make use of the occasional leaves they get to come into Marion.

Commanding Officer

The commanding officer of the battalion is Lieut. Col. Herman Work of Covington, Va. His military service began when he attended the first officers training camp at De Presidio of San Francisco in 1917. While there he was assigned as a first lieutenant to the 10th Engineers (Forestry) then being formed for immediate service. He was made supply officer of the 20th Engineers, serving two years in the AEF.

Since the war he had charge of wood procurement for a large paper mill at his home town. He has been a reserve officer since the World war and received his present rank a year ago upon completion of the required training. For his work he received a citation from the commander-in-chief of the AEF entitling him to wear the decoration of the order of the Purple Heart, established by General Washington during the Revolutionary war.

Capt. Gray, the adjutant, for several years has been in charge of construction work for Kresge stores in the New England area. He and his wife came here from Boston. He was a lieutenant in the first World war and saw two years of overseas duty, building docks, supply bases and railroads.

The other officers are of more recent military experience, but all of them have had engineering training and experience in varying degrees.

persons, the latter could accumulate greater credits against the tax during the year.

Credits of 25 per cent of the tax, or a minimum of $500, could be accumulated by single persons for payments they had made on life insurance, debts incurred before Jan. 1, 1942 or government bond purchases. The remainder of the unused credit would be represented in non-negotiable non-interest bearing government bonds they could cash after the war.

Married persons could claim similar credits up to 40 per cent of the tax, a maximum of $1,000 with 2 per cent, or a maximum of $100, allowed for each dependent.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) suggested that this extra, added tax, might be merged into the regular income tax by lowering exemptions, increasing rates and possibly by eliminating the present law's 10 per cent credit for earned income.

As outlined to the committee 5 per cent "victory" tax would levy amounts ranging from $3.80 yearly on a person with $800 annual earnings to $99,953 on one with $2,000,000 annual income.

Debt and post-war rebate credits would range from $2.20 in the $800 annual income class to a maximum of $500 a year for a single person. A married person with two dependents would have a credit of $3.87 in the $800 annual income class, running up to the $1,200 maximum. Those become mounted above $5 a year.

Louis - Conn Fight Oct. 12 Expected to Yield Million for Army Relief

Jacobs Expects Crowd of 77,000 at First Daylight Title Bout Since 19 Years Ago.

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Simply for the pleasure of giving the wives and kiddies of our doughboys a million dollars, a couple of Uncle Sam's soldiers are going to climb into Yankee stadium's ring on Columbus Day to fight the hottest fistic "natural" in six years.

It is almost as sure as a bomb sight's aim that the heavyweight championship return fight on Oct. 12 between Corp. Joe Louis, boss man of the beak busters, and Pvt. Billy Conn, who almost took the title a year ago, will hit the million-dollar jackpot for the first time since the Bomber's second bout with Max Schmeling in '38.

The memory of the fireworks they set off in their first brawl is enough to bring the customers storming back again. And, if more help was needed, the fact that this one is entirely for army emergency relief will more than make up the difference. What's more, Promoter Mike Jacobs is shooting at a crowd of 77,000 and a gate of $1,200,000—with tickets scaled from $3 to $40—and he figures a lot of the folks who will be here for the World Series the first week in October will stick around and help jingle the cash registers.

All To Army

Yet, not one nickel of it, except for minor expenses, will go to either fighter or Promoter Jacobs. The son of the Alabama cotton picker, the tough Irish kid out of Pittsburgh and Jacobs will dump their whole pot into the bank account for the families of our soldiers.

The army, at long last, gave its official blessing to the get-together yesterday after keeping all hands in a lather of doubt about it for a dozen weeks or so.

The Bomber and the Pittsburgh pretty boy are going to do a pretty fair country job of rewriting the record books. The fact that Joe and Billy are putting this one on for the house—doing the almost unheard of stunt of fighting for the world heavyweight championship for nothing—is a record itself.

Then, too, it marks the first time in legalized nose-mashing that two soldier boys have fought for the richest prize package in the business. On top of that, it will be the first daylight fight for the big bauble since Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons broiled under the sun at Shelby, Mont., 19 years back. Because of dim-out regulations here, Promoter Mike plans to move it up to 3 p. m.

Raring To Go

Conn, stationed at nearby Fort Wadsworth, and Louis, who is with the cavalry at Fort Riley, Kas., were both as steamed up as a couple of kids with a bag of candy over the prospects of putting on a re-run of their big thriller. A year ago, Conn amazed even his closest pals by taking a long lead for 12 rounds, only to get his "Irish up," try to trade Sunday shots with Joe in the 13th, and run smack into the Bomber's knockout drops.

Billy, scaling 185 now, will do his training at a specially constructed camp at Jacobs' Rumson (N. J.) estate. Louis said that he is "12 or 15 pounds overweight," which would put him in the neighborhood of a hefty 220. He will train at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., as usual.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The Louis-Conn tracas looks like a money-making natural from here... Because the World Series will be bringing sports fans east and if they want something to do with their time after that is over, three first-class football games are on tap here the Saturday before the Oct. 12 scrap to keep them around. P. S.: We pick Louis to win, figuring army life will hurt Conn's speed more than Joe's punch.

Bucyrus Team To Use Train Transportation

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 9—The Bucyrus high school sport program for the year just beginning will be carried out with the aid of train transportation which will this year replace bus travel for team members, Principal Edwin C. Gearhart announced today.

A transportation policy was discussed by principals of the North Central Ohio district at Galion last week which disclosed that many of the games scheduled could be arranged by train transportation.

Gearhart said that there was a possibility that only one team would be transported to the basketball games when that season opens.

Pumpkinseed oil, cornseed oil and beechnut oil have been added to the official list of edible oils in Bulgaria.

ARMY ALL-STARS FAVORED TONIGHT

Expected To Win Charity Game from Detroit Lions.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Sept. 9—Major Wallace Wade, never overly optimistic, says his western army All-Stars are definitely not a great team, but most observers believe they are good enough to whip the Detroit Lions tonight and seize the edge in the charity series with National Football league clubs.

Wade said he would stick pretty much to the lineup that started Sunday's triumph at Denver over the Chicago Cardinals, which matched an earlier defeat to the Washington Redskins at Los Angeles, and then added:

"This isn't a great team, you know, and never will be. Why? It seems to me that football is secondary to these boys, just as it should be."

WRESTLES ANGELO THURSDAY

Jack Bloomfield, the grappler from New York will get his chance Thursday Night at the Armory to even things up with one Martino Angelo. After Jack won his match last Thursday with Wild Bill Zimovich, he asked for the chance with Angelo, telling Promoter Fishbaugh that if he could win over the tough Italian, he should be in for some important matches at the Armory this winter. Martino Angelo and Jack Bloomfield wrestled a torrid match here four weeks ago and Jack lost the match when he wasn't in the ring at the count. Soldier Thomas wrestles Ivan Kalimkoff, the Mad Russian in the one hour semi-final and to round out an all star card Axel Madsen meets Wild Bill Zimovich in the one fall opener. ## CARDINALS INVADE EAST, CONFIDENT OF CHANCE AT PENNANT

Brooklyn's 3-Game Lead Does Not Impress Billy Southworth.

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Take it direct from Billy (The Kid) Southworth, the Brooklyn Dodgers don't look any different to his St. Louis Cardinals than any other club in the National league.

Now this is not to imply that the Phillies resemble the Dodgers—or are even a reasonable facsimile thereof. But as he led his roaring Redbirds into their final full scale invasion of the east today—an invasion that the Cards still confidently expect will wind up with the National league pennant—Billy the Kid came right out with his battle strategy—"We play 'em as we meet 'em, game by game."

He stayed by this theory, even though the Bums boasted a gaudy three-game bulge on the Cardinals as a result of Ed Head's four-hit whitewash to give the Dodgers a 1-0 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday. The Cardinals were idle.

Still In Fight

"But we're still confident and we're still in the fight," Southworth insisted. "We play this single game with the Giants today. Then we move into Brooklyn for those two games Friday and Saturday. And then we have the Phillies and Braves after that.

"Well, we're playing every ball game as it comes along. Brooklyn is just another ball game, the same as Boston and Philadelphia. We're trying to win each one of 'em and get this—we're not looking forward or backward. We're only looking at what's right there in front of us each day."

The Dodgers had little trouble with Pittsburgh. Head had the Bucs rolling over and playing dead, and when his mates gave him a run in the first frame, the whole thing was over. In fact, after the first inning, not a Pirate got as far as second base.

Senators Edge Sox

This was the only game in the National league, while over in the American league three games were run off, chief of which saw the Washington Senators nosing out the Boston Red Sox, 15 to 11. All told, 35 hits rattled off the Griffith stadium fences but in the end, ten walks handed out by the Sox elbowers did as much damage as anything else. A second game had to be called at the end of four innings so both teams could catch a train.

The setback sank the second place Sox 9½ games behind the idle New York Yankees.

The St. Louis Browns put a firmer grab on the American leagues third place by whipping the Detroit Tigers 4-1.

The Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox were slated for a doubleheader, but after young Ray Poat's seven-hit twirling whipped the Sox 10-0 in the opener, the second game had to be called off.

Indians Show More Zip After New Blood Is Added To Squad

Ray Poat, Back with Tribe, Pitches 10-0 Shutout Against Chicago White Sox.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9—The enemie Cleveland Indians are getting some new blood in a belated attempt to regain early-season strength in the stretch.

The first transfusion worked fine. Ray Poat, returning to the Tribe after spending most of the season with Indianapolis of the American Association, pitched a 10 to 0 shutout over the Chicago White Sox yesterday in the first game of what was to have been a double header. Weather postponed the second game.

For their final 1942 game under the lights against Philadelphia here tonight, the Indians will have more new blood. Manager Lou Boudreau announced he would use Ted Szczepowski, 18-year-old farm hand from the Baltimore club of the International League, at second base.

Two other rookies brought up from Baltimore with the young infielder also are expected to see action tonight. They are Hank Edwards of Norwalk, O., who will go next to the outfield and First Baseman Bill Robinson.

Szczepowski, rated a $50,000 prospect by some International League veterans, batted .240 for the season at Baltimore. Robinson had a .295 average and hit 23 home runs, and Edwards, .271 and 17 homers.

Poat, who attended the University of Illinois with Boudreau, yielded seven hits and four bases on balls in his first start since rejoining the Indians, but he apparently got out of the tight spot. He was with Cleveland at the start of the season and was charged with one loss, a 6 to 2 decision, dropped to Detroit.

O. W. U. GRID HEAD

Bill Watkins, Delaware senior, a 185-lb. five-foot six-inch hunk of dynamite, will captain Ohio Wesleyan's Battling Bishops this fall. Bill, a veteran of two previous grid campaigns, will play at the quarterback position. Football is in Bill's blood, since he is the son of Don Watkins, now assistant treasurer of the university who was one of the Red and Black greats back in 1917. Ohio Wesleyans schedule reads: Sept. 26, Albion at Delaware; Oct. 3, Bowling Green at Delaware; Oct. 9, Baldwin-Wallace at Berea; Oct. 17, Akron at Delaware; Oct. 24, Ohio University at Athens; Oct. 31, Case at Cleveland; Nov. 7, Miami at Delaware; Nov. 14, Boston University at Boston; Nov. 21, Western Reserve at Cleveland.

That Extra Something!
...You can spot it every time

LIKE "winning a letter", keeping out in front of the others takes an extra something. Coca-Cola has it,—in taste...in quality...in refreshment.

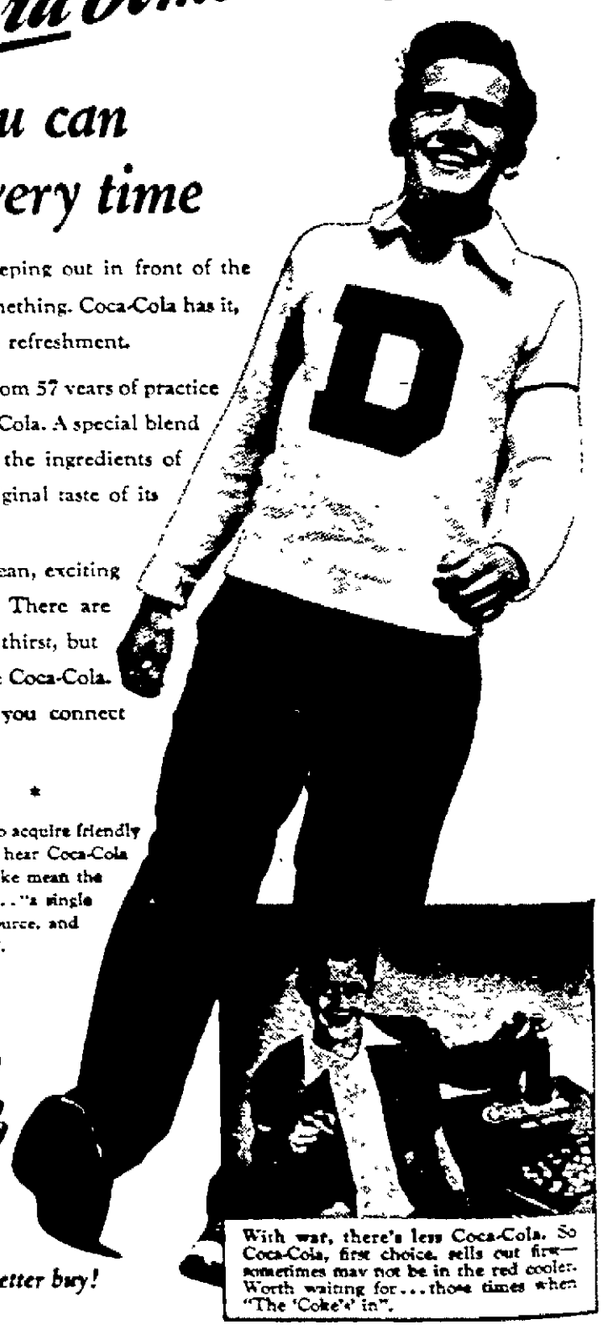
The finished art that comes from 57 years of practice goes into the making of Coca-Cola. A special blend of flavor-essences merges all the ingredients of Coca-Cola into a unique, original taste of its own.

Everybody recognizes this clean, exciting quality taste in Coca-Cola. There are many ways to quench your thirst, but only Coca-Cola refreshes like Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

* * *

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Coca-Cola and Coke mean the same thing...the real thing..."a single thing coming from a single source, and well known to the community".

The best is always the better buy!



With war, there's less Coca-Cola. So Coca-Cola, first choice, sells out first—sometimes may not be in the red cooler. Worth waiting for...those times when "The 'Coke's' in".

OFFICERS INSTALLED AT C.Y.P.U. MEETING

Talks Given by Harold Patrick and "Dad" Arnold.

Officers were installed at a picnic meeting of the Christian Young People's union of Marion at the First Evangelical and Reformed church last night. After games and the picnic lunch the candlelight installation service was in charge of A. T. "Dad" Arnold of Columbus, prominent young people's worker in the state.

Miss Marguerite Williamson of Epworth Methodist church became president of the group; James Hill of Trinity Baptist, vice president; Charlotte Dutt of Salem Evangelical and Reformed, secretary; Florence Orahood of First United Brethren, treasurer; Bernard Brooks of Prospect Street Methodist, advisor and Rev. At the beginning of the service Harold Patrick, who founded the C. Y. P. U. in Marion 13 years ago led the group in a period of singing. "Dad" Arnold spoke on "Courage" saying that heroism is needed not only in fighting the war but in fighting evil conditions that arise out of the war and conditions threatening society generally. He stressed the point that the youth of all denominations must work together bound to each other by the bond of Christian love. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold are founders of Camp Indianola, Christian youth retreat in Hocking county. After the installation service sharing of the communion was observed.

Officers of the organization will participate in a new phase of the youth work this winter, making the C. Y. P. U. a year-around project. A council for denominational group will be established consisting of C. Y. P. U. officers and officers appointed representatives from individual churches.

ALLIES SLOW UP JAP DRIVE

Enemy Losses Heavy High in New Guinea Owen Stanley Mountains.

By The Associated Press

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian headquarters reported today that allied troops often fighting with bayonets had closed the Japanese drive up the west approaches to the gap—a 7,000-foot mountain pass in the Owen Stanley range—80 miles west of the United Nations outpost at Port Moresby, New Guinea.

A headquarters spokesman said the fighting raged about 2,000 feet below the gap on the north side of the range.

Dispatches said Japanese losses were heavy as allied patrols defended the jungle-bordered trail in fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

A single Australian patrol of 20 men, opposed by 200 Japanese, effectively ambushed the enemy with machine guns, tommy guns and rifles on Sunday, dispatches said and the following day another allied patrol routed a Japanese post with grenades and killed six Japs without loss.

In the Milne bay sector, on the southeast tip of New Guinea, Australian troops were credited with inflicting 700 casualties on the enemy, and reports said the Japanese seaborne force in that area had been practically wiped out.

Despite bad weather prevailing over the New Guinea battle region, allied bombers and torpedo-carrying planes carried out repeated attacks on Japanese warships north of Milne Bay, pounding the enemy on Monday near Normanby island and again Tuesday among the Rebriand islands. A Japanese destroyer was listed as probably hit.

Other allied fliers attacked and set fire to a group of Japanese barges ferrying supplies along the New Guinea coast to Buna, the base for the enemy thrust toward Port Moresby.

MacArthur Calls On Men To Fight to End

By The Associated Press

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Sept. 8—General MacArthur told United States troops in the field today that all he asked of them in action was that they kill one Japanese apiece.

The general talked at length to officers on the fighting qualities of the enemy they will meet eventually and counseled them to remember Napoleon's admonition that a soldier must never surrender except when he is unable to deliver any stroke against his enemy.

As long as he had power to injure his enemy, even though he knew he was going to be defeated or destroyed locally, he must strike, MacArthur said, because in that way he helped his comrades on some other front.

Priorities Clinic Schedule Changed

Interviews with Marion producers relative to priorities will be conducted on Thursday of each week at the Chamber of Commerce office, instead of Friday as formerly planned, according to a telegram received yesterday from B. C. Zuhars, district manager for the Columbus area.

New Washington assignments in the Columbus office compelled the change of date, according to Mr. Zuhars.

AUTO, BIKE STOLEN

Two thefts were reported to police yesterday afternoon and last night. Natale Maniaci of 694 Silver street reported theft of an automobile parked on Holmes place last night. Bob Murphy of Marion reported his bicycle was stolen on West Center street.

Air Raid Wardens of Precinct Meet

[illegible] of Wards [illegible] meeting Tuesday night at [illegible] of the Boys' Club. The meeting was opened by the singing of America. Prayer was offered by Mrs. J. P. Pridgen. Plans were made for weekly meetings for instruction and [illegible] Earl Robinson talked to the group on their work during an air raid or other emergency.

ROTARIANS HEAR NEW YORK DOCTOR

Qualities of an Executive Discussed by Physician.

Dr. John Brown, Jr., New York City physician, spoke to the Rotary club yesterday on "Point Making As An Executive."

Dr. Brown said that one of two things happens to an executive. Either the job gets on top of him and he's out or he gets on top of the job and he's in. He either executes or is executed.

He declared that an executive must have ideas and flag seeds. These ideas must be planted in prepared soil and a good environment for them to mature. This is a job which cannot be done alone and a good executive will divide his work among the people working under him in such a way as to promote team work.

A poor executive makes the people under him feel insignificant while a good executive recognizes the worth of his helpers, Dr. Brown stressed.

He emphasized that no executive can do his work properly if he isn't in good health and stressed the importance of proper care of the body.

Guests included Dr. James Snyder of the Cardington Rotary club, Jon C. McLaughlin of the Charlotte, Mich., Rotary club, J. G. Kramer of Columbus and Marion Meyberger, physical education director of the Y. M. C. A.

HYDRANT BROKEN AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Three Other Traffic Mishaps Listed in Marion.

Four traffic accidents, one of which caused damage to a hydrant, were reported to police today and Tuesday.

The hydrant was struck at East Center street and Main avenue when a car driven by Albert Cooper of near Caledonia and D. S. Hoose of Marion collided early this morning.

Cars driven by Paul C. Pyle of 484 Girard avenue and Wayne McCarty of Caledonia collided at Columbus and Oak streets Tuesday afternoon.

Autos driven by Leo A. Wagner of 301 South Vine street and Don Williamson of Caledonia crashed at North Main and Hoover streets yesterday afternoon.

Nellie B. Wellbaum of 693 Davis street and Benjamin C. Kress of near Marion were listed as drivers in a collision at Park boulevard and West Center street Tuesday.

GRAINS CONTINUE ADVANCING TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 — Grain prices continued to advance today, rye leading the upturn with gains of about 4 cents while wheat rose nearly 2 cents.

Wheat and rye were at new highs since July and oats reached the best levels since May. Improved flour business strengthened wheat.

Grain men attributed the fresh rise on top of yesterday's gains to further market adjustment to the President's price control program. Whereas many dealers had feared farm prices might be frozen, the President's speech was interpreted as an indication the administration hopes to check price rises at around parity. Since grains are well below parity, with rye at the sharpest discount, any stabilization program which might be worked out in congress would be regarded as bullish, traders said.

Wheat closed ⅞-2 cents higher than yesterday, Sept. $1.24, Dec $1.27¼-⅜; corn ⅝-1 higher, Sept. 84¼-⅜, Dec 86⅞-¾; rye 2¾-4¼ higher, Sept 69¼; oats ⅝ up, soybeans ⅞ higher.

Columbus Dance Ban Returned to Council

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9 — Mayor Floyd E. Green today tossed back into city council's lap its request that he suspend dance permits of liquor and beer places for the duration of the war. The dance ban suggestion, first discussed after police at the army's request instituted a nice cleanup "doesn't mean a thing," the mayor asserted, unless council amends the city dance ordinance to make it effective. Council postponed until next week a vote on a proposal to place a midnight curfew on taverns.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Head Pains

We have mentioned pains in the muscles, joints, tendons and also foot pain in articles this week. We go on to discuss the commonest kind of pain of all—headache or head pain. As in the case of the foot the head is subject to pain often because there are so many structures in the head area that are constantly used and that need a very delicate balance and adjustment so that they will operate smoothly.

For instance, we all know fatigue headaches. You have been going about all day working so hard you haven't time to notice whether there is any headache beginning or not. Your eyes move from one side to the other on the average of at least twice a second. That is 360 times in the three hour session.

Your ears are constantly assailed with a variety of strange noises — bangs, shrieks, scrapes, pounds or just plain noises.

You have nodded your head heaven knows how many times, turned to look to right or left and spoken several thousand words, all requiring muscular motion.

Your nose has been assailed with a number of different odors and it has become the receptacle for quite a quantity of street dirt. Is it any wonder that the head bears the brunt of the fatigue reaction of all this activity and that you have a fatigue headache? It is unquestionably the commonest form of headache.

Any kind of poison or toxin seems to go to the head first and headache is reliably the first indication of a cold or a fever.

These are all occasional or acute headaches. The chronic headache is not so easy to deal with or to explain. The common chronic headache, as Dr. Hugh Patrick, of Chicago, used to tell his students, is not an ache at all.

The patient will describe it as a pressure, or fullness, or feeling of emptiness, or dragging, or dizziness, or unsteadiness, or tension, or flickering, or feeling as if the head contained a liquid which changed its level at each movement and so on ad infinitum. These neurotic headaches are easier to describe than to cure. Medicines are no good for them, in fact should be avoided. Psychological treatment is best.

The other form of chronic headache is migraine, or sick headache. It is recurrent and comes in spells and runs in families. Nobody knows what causes it.

It begins in young adult life and usually disappears in middle age. It never kills, that is one thing to be said in its favor. Most patients have their own system of treatment. As I wrote some time ago a number of people tell me that if they do not drink water during or before the attack it shortens it. They usually know when the attack is coming on and they stop drinking water as soon as these symptoms appear.

These ideas of laymen have recently received official confirmation from Dr. Temple Fay, of Philadelphia, who believes that congestions causes a stretching of the membranes and if the water consumption is cut off the amount of blood in the sinuses of the head is reduced and hence the stretching is lessened.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"THIS IS so good of you, Mrs. Graham," the manager of the Lansfield said, trying hard to keep up the suave, authoritative attitude, tinged with deference, which is the stock-in-trade of the successful Buntface.

Bewildered as to what my father wished me to do, although sure Mr. Milner was the person with whom my father wanted me to deal, I could only play a parrying game.

"Will you not sit down?" I asked.

"No, thank you; I haven't time for that," he replied. "My errand is urgent."

"You wished to ask me something?" I prodded.

"Yes, I did," he answered, "and I trust you will not be disturbed or offended."

"I am not easily disturbed or offended," I answered steadily, "unless there is grave reason for offense."

Asks for Redfield

"It is vital that I see Stephen Redfield immediately," he said, "I have been searching for him everywhere, but cannot find him, so I have come to you. Is he here?"

I had my cue now—to delay him in every way possible until I could get my father into the room.

"Really, Mr. Miller," I said icily, "You must realize that a question like that, and at this hour, is an insult. I ought not to answer it, but I shall. Stephen Redfield is not in this apartment."

The malevolence in his look told me that the necessity now goading him was shattering his carefully built-up mask.

"He was a few minutes ago," he said. "Your husband knocked him down in this very room. I've been told. That, of course, is none of my affair, but if he is conscious I must see him."

I was convinced that he knew who dealth the blow to Redfield, but was deliberately substituting Dicky for Noel because of Philip Veritzen's ownership of the Lansfield. I was angry enough to give him a blow such as Noel gave Redfield, and when I saw him edging toward my bedroom with the evident intention of looking into it, and realized that his next move probably would be toward the adjoining apartment, I knew it was time to signal my father.

"Where are you going?" I demanded. "Don't advance another step!" Then, as he made a swift dash for the bedroom door, I gave a scream just loud enough to reach my father's listening ears.

Milner turned at my scream, patently uncertain whether to play his role as solicitous, misunderstanding hotel executive, or to throttle me into silence. Before he could decide, the camouflaged door flew opend and Dicky and my father rushed in.

Dicky Plays a Role

"What's the matter, darling?" my husband demanded, advancing on Milner threateningly, but clearly playing a role under my father's instruction. Otherwise the suave manager of the Lansfield would already be measuring his length on the floor.

I watched my father's eyes for their signal and framed my answer accordingly.

"Nothing at all," I answered. "You know how I hate spiders, and I just found one crawling on my arm. I am afraid I startled Mr. Milner terribly."

I turned to the manager apologetically, and saw, a shrewd, speculative look in his warily watchful eyes.

"It was bad enough not to be able to give you the information you wished," I said smoothly, "without frightening you by my foolish hysteria. But," with a malicious smile, "perhaps you would like to ask the same question of my father—or my husband."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Sept. 10

JUDGING by the lunar domination, this day there may be excellent opportunities for increasing the financial status, with sound security for credits and standing, by means of good judgment and tactful approach to those in high places for support and friendship. This may eventually lead to tokens of esteem in wills, gifts or bequests. Offsetting this, however, there are omens of anxiety, bereavement or other distress of an intimate or family nature.

Those whose birthday it is may find a year of splendid opportunity for mending their credit or increasing the financial status, with the friendly cooperation of influential personages. This may attain such growth and tokens of preferment as to inspire eventual bequests, gifts or other valuable consideration. The physical and emotional energies may need conservation.

A child born on this day should be efficient, talented and ambitious, attracting the interests and solid cooperation of those in high places. It may suffer in its health emotional tension.

What's a Mere Bomb?

By The Associated Press

LONDON—You can't frighten 50 Mayfair business girls, members of the Women's Home Defense Corps, with live bombs. But mice are different. The girls got on fine at handling a live bomb during a drill but when a cat gate-crashed the lecture with a live mouse in its mouth these "commando girls" leaped screaming onto their chairs.
